SEOUL (AP)—Two Chinese companies hurled strong attacks at Allied positions on the bitterly cold Western and Central Korean Fronts last night and today but were beaten back.

One Red company — up to 175 men — slammed in two waves against an Allied advance position in the Kelly Hill sector of the Western Front shortly after dark last night. The Allies drove off the attackers after 35 minutes.

The other company jabbed at Allied defenders atop Pinpoint Hill on Sniper Ridge on the Central Front. Counterattacking U. N. troops regained the positions after an hour of bitter fighting.

Coldest Weather

Both actions raged in the coldest weather of the winter. The mercury plunged to 10 degrees below zero in the Sniper Ridge area.

Fifth Air Force fighter-bombers, flying in clear skies, pounded rail and supply routes in North Korea and Communist frontline positions.

In the week ended Jan. 2, the Air Force said U. S. Sabre jets destroyed two Communist MIG fighters, probably destroyed another and damaged a fourth. No Sabre losses were listed.

A U. S. F51 Mustang was lost to Communist groundfire, and a Sabre, a Mustang and a B26 light bomber were lost to other causes, presumably mechanical trouble.

MADE TREES FOR CHRISTMAS

One of Adams County's new industries—the production of hand-made Christmas trees—undertaken for the first time this year, "proved more successful than I anticipated," L. S. Long, its originator, said today.

Long had asked that publicity on his experiment be withheld "until we find out how this thing works out." Today he said that it has possibilities of providing future yearly income for county farmers with evergreen plantations.

For the hand-made Christmas trees, the boughs trimmed from the trees were fastened together with wire to form a perfect "Christmas Tree."

30 Tons Of Boughs

Thirty tons of boughs from Long's plantations on Keckler's hill were used in making thousands of "hand-made" Christmas trees marketed this year. Thirty-five workers were employed in processing and coloring the boughs, trimming them and fastening them to the wire base to make the trees. The facilities of the Burgeon and Yingling canning plant on E. Railroad St., plus additional equipment placed there for the work, were used in assembling the trees. They were sent to New York, Baltimore, Philadelphia, Chicago, Pittsburgh and other cities for sale in department stores and supermarkets.

The trees were packed in a modern hat box, made by State Container Corporation (Rice Trew and Rice), Biglerville. When the trees were removed, the container became hat boxes again.

To keep down the box size, the tops of the trees were separate and packed beside the lower part of the tree. The purchaser simply stuck the top part into the lower portion and he had a two- to 2 1/2-foot, rounded and pointed tree that needed no stander, or watering. The trees last, because of the processing of the boughs, for approximately a month after purchase.

Sold Boughs Too

"Kris Kringle," the patented name used by Long for the last four years for packed Christmas tree boughs in various cities through the East, was also used for the Christmas trees. The boughs for Christmas decorations continued to have wide acceptance this year.

Long, the first local man to put hand-made Christmas trees on the market, said the idea for the trees was not original with him. Female employees at the local Manufacturers Light and Heat Co. read of the idea in a magazine and then built a tree themselves for use in the gas company window last year. Long liked the idea, investigated and found no one was manufacturing such trees.

MOTORIST FINED

George B. M. Baker, Abbottstown, was ordered by Judge Walter I. Anderson, York, Friday to pay a $100 fine upon his plea of guilty to turning off his automobile lights to avoid identification and arrest. The incident occurred Sept. 26 in Hanover while Baker was being pursued on a reckless driving offense, the information states.

'52 WAS AMONG HEALTHIEST FOR ADAMS COUNTY

The year just ended was one of the healthiest ever enjoyed by Adams Countyans, if the annual report of William I. Shields, state sanitary officer for Adams County, is any indication of the general health in the county. Mr. Shields' report covers rural areas and small communities not having a health officer of their own. Boroughs in the county are not covered in his report.

Among the few diseases showing an increase in 1952 over the total for 1951 were meningitis and polio. Five cases of meningitis occurred last year as against four during the preceding year while the polio total from one to six in 1952.

One of the most marked decreases was in the number of scarlet fever cases which dropped from 45 to nine. Figures for other quarantifiable or notifiable diseases last year follow: Tuberculosis, four; measles, 19, as against 18 the year (Continued on Page 8)

Here And There

A number of years ago George Matthew Adams, author of "Today's Talk," one of the oldest daily features in The Gettysburg Times, wrote a New Year's prayer. It was widely acclaimed across the country. Many of our subscribers clipped the piece out and each New Year's read it. This year one of our subscribers asked us to republish it. Here it is:

A NEW YEAR PRAYER

Lead us this New Year, O God, into new conceptions. Cleanse us in mind and heart and separate us from all pettiness, all insincerities, all idle boasting, and all vain-glorious attempts. Keep us humble in spirit and selfless.

Create within us resolves of significance, and lead us into each new day with increasing thankfulness for all Thy endless benefits. Banish all fear from our hearts, and give to us forward courage. Imbue us with tolerance, understanding, and consideration for the feelings of others. Teach us Thy will, and help us to keep the faith.

Grant to us, dear Lord, great performance in little things, as well as in the big things. Give to us an open mind, and a just one, so that no word or act of ours may leave a hurt or scar behind. Endow us with abundant kindness, and make it easy to apply at every opportunity.

Give to us, we pray, a universal outlook, and inspire us into ways of usefulness. Help us to experience the joys of the triumphant life, and may we never lose the common touch, by which we become known one to the other.

Guide us, Heavenly Father, through every vicissitude of life. May we follow uncomplainingly, with fortitude, and may Thy will rule every act, direct every impulse, toward a more perfect union of mind and spirit, so that we may more and more become one with Thee.

May this New Year be filled with richness and service rendered, and may we be accounted worthy servants in Thy Kingdom here upon this earth.

URGE COUNTIANS TO EXHIBIT AT PA. FARM SHOW

County Farm Agents M. T. Hartman and Fred H. Attinger and County Home Economics Extension Representative Miss Mary Jane Mickey today joined in urging Adams Countyans to send exhibits to the annual State Farm Show at Harrisburg.

Entries to the show must be in by next Saturday, January 10, because judging will begin January 11. The county agents particularly urged the hundreds of persons who won placings at the South Mountain Fair to consider sending their best articles to the State Farm Show. Quality of the top placing articles at the South Mountain Fair was high enough "to give excellent competition to anything sent in from other counties to the State Farm Show," it was stated.

Mr. Hartman observed: "Each year the farm show serves as a showplace for Pennsylvania agriculture. Some of the best products of the farm and home are made in Adams County but we cannot get recognition of that fact unless we (Continued on Page 7)

FTC Hearings To Open Here Monday

The series of hearings was begun in November in Washington.

83rd Congress Convenes Today Near To End Of Democratic Rule

WASHINGTON (AP)—The 83rd Congress convenes today, marking the beginning of the end of 20 years of Democratic "New Deal-Fair Deal" administrations.

The complete transfer of the government from Democratic to Republican hands will become complete on Jan. 20 when Dwight D. Eisenhower becomes the first Republican president since Herbert Hoover.

Advance indications are that the honeymoon between the White House and Capitol Hill will last quite awhile, despite the ever-present threat of a blow-up in legislative-executive relations such as characterized the closing years of the Franklin D. Roosevelt administrations and almost all of Harry S. Truman's nearly eight years in office.

Not Since 1930

It's the second GOP-dominated Congress since 1930, the Republicans having held control in 1947 and 1948. But not since 1930, when Herbert Hoover was president, have both the White House and Congress been in Republican hands.

The big foreseeable issues facing the new Congress, under the leadership of Robert A. Taft in the Senate and Speaker Joseph W. Martin Jr. in the House, deal with taxes, federal spending, labor, foreign aid, the war in Korea, price-wage-rent controls, immigration and tidelands oil, to name a few.

As in other Congresses, the first few months will be spent in organizing and getting legislation prepared.

May Be Skirmishes

Brief but possibly spirited skirmishes may mark the initial sessions of both chambers.

MORE BUILDING IN '52 BUT COST LESS THAN '51

There was more building in the borough during 1952 than during 1951, but the amount spent in the construction was less, a summary of building permits issued by Burgess William G. Weaver during the past year reveals.

There were 137 permits to build or alter granted by the Burgess' office during the year as compared with 86 permits in 1951 and 93 in 1950. The estimated cost was $432,240 for construction, alterations and repairs. $846,225 was spent in 1951 and $544,315 in 1950.

Actually the construction that made 1951 a high year as far as outlay for building was concerned was done mostly during 1952, but the permits were granted during the prior year. It included the $403,000 Gettysburg College Chapel which is now nearing completion. That $403,000 and the $200,000 Gettysburg Seminary dormitory-apartment building were included in the 1951 totals.

No Large Structures

With no unusually large structures listed in the 1952 permits, they show that actually more individual structures, dwellings, stores, barns, sheds, factories, etc. were built or started in 1952 than in 1951. Subtracting the seminary and college building from the 1951 figures leaves $243,225 to all other construction listed as started in that year. In 1952, $301,375 was the amount listed for new building and $30,865 for repairs and alterations.

Eighteen one-family dwellings were scheduled for construction during the past year, according to the Burgess' records. The 18 houses were estimated to cost $200,500. In addition 19 tourist cabins were constructed at a cost of $26,800.

Fifty-one permits were issued for alterations, repairs or additions to homes, with the estimated outlay being $57,665.

$30,000 Store

One permit was issued for store construction to cost $30,000. Thirteen garages were built at a cost of $13,800, and seven sheds, poultry houses and construction offices, were built at a cost of $1,925. There was one public building constructed at a cost of $1,000.

The day of the horse is apparently not over, because two permits to build stables or barns were granted to cost $700.

Permits for repairs and alterations or extension to non-residential buildings totaled 22, with $73,200 listed for that work. The largest single amount was the $40,000 estimate for the renovation of the old St. Francis Xavier School.

One factory was listed for construction during the year, at a cost of $25,000 and two other workshops are listed, to be built at a cost of $1,650.

The permits show the average home built in Gettysburg during 1952 cost $11,139.

Gettysburg's fire company has received a "thank-you note" from the Hanover firemen for their assistance in the recent Bon Ton fire. The letter, written Wednesday by Hanover Burgess Horace J. Stine, was received by Gettysburg Burgess, and Fire Company President, William G. Weaver Friday.

Burgess Stine said, "Dear Burgess Weaver: After only 21 months, when Hanover had its last major fire, I again want to express to you, and through you, to the Fire Chief and Fire Companies of Gettysburg, our great appreciation for your ready, willing and able assistance at the recent Bon Ton Dept. Store fire in Hanover on the night of Dec. 30th.

"Your boys never let us down, and as I said before, we hope it shall not be necessary for you to request our help in a similar manner in your town, but if needs be our Dept. will be ready to reciprocate.

"We have a high regard for the firemen of Gettysburg as well as other neighboring communities, and if anything occurs during the course of your assistance to us that seems unfair or unethical, please advise me, for we want to continue the best of relationships.

"With every good wish for you and the boys of the Gettysburg Fire Dept. I want to again thank you for your much regarded aid."

ARRAIGN PAIR HERE TODAY IN CABIN THEFTS

Floyd J. Kauffman, 28, and his brother, Irvin E. Kauffman, 27, both of Waynesboro R. 4, were arraigned this morning before Justice of the Peace Robert P. Snyder on charges of burglarizing the Chambersburg UB Boy Scout cabins north of Caledonia in November.

The elder brother signed a plea of guilty, and was held for sentence court. Irvin Kauffman pleaded not guilty, but waived a hearing before Justice Snyder and was held for court action. Both were committed to the Adams County jail in default of bail.

The Kauffmans were paroled Friday by Judge Edmund C. Wingerd, Chambersburg, after serving sentences in Franklin County jail for burglarizing the Emerald Point Lodge in the South Mountains on November 1. Detainers had been filed on the Adams County charge. The Emerald Point Lodge is in Franklin County and the Boy Scout camp in Adams County, police said.

Caught In The Act

The Kauffmans were arrested by state police of the Chambersburg substation, who were patrolling the mountains during the forest fires which swept this section. They found Floyd Kauffman sitting in an automobile, and while they were questioning him, Irvin Kauffman came through the woods with a drawful of dishes alleged to have been stolen at the Emerald Point Lodge.

Irvin dropped the dishes and fled, but was apprehended. A radio, garden tools, shovels, rakes and other property were found in the car.

The men are charged with taking a radio, skillet, griddle, tools and other property valued at $25 from the Boy Scout camp, after causing damage to the cabins estimated at $128.

VET IS JAILED FOR SHOOTING HIS MOTHER

WEST ORANGE, N. J. (AP)—Michael Madden, the 30-year old World War 2 flier accused of the shotgun slaying of his 65-year old mother, is in jail today awaiting Grand Jury action in the case.

Arraigned yesterday before Magistrate James Degnan, he repeatedly refused to enter a plea and the magistrate finally had an automatic plea of innocent entered for him.

Degnan ordered Madden held without bail on the murder charge pending action of the Essex County Grand Jury.

Madden came before the magistrate in the afternoon, his head still swathed in bandages covering injuries he received in an auto crash in Bethlehem, Pa., Wednesday.

It was the accident that brought Madden into the hands of Pennsylvania police, resulting in his return to West Orange yesterday after he waived extradition.

Madden just shook his head and murmured "no statement" each time the magistrate asked him how he pleaded. He had no lawyer at the proceedings.

Refuses Confession
Police said Madden first admitted killing his mother and then denied it. He had been sought by West Orange authorities since Dec. 30 when Mrs. Frances Madden was found dead in her home here, the victim of a shotgun charge in the neck.

Madden was arrested Wednesday in Bethlehem after his car skidded across a four-lane highway and rammed into a bridge abutment.

Taken to Bethlehem hospital, he was identified through papers found in his clothing and West Orange police were notified.

Detective Lt. Melvin Packard of the Bethlehem police said Madden orally admitted he shot his mother eight times "because God told me to do it." Later, however, Madden told West Orange police he never made the admission.

Madden returned here with local police yesterday after waiving extradition before Judge Carleton T. Woodring in Northampton County Court, Easton, Pa. He signed the extradition papers with an "X," claiming his arm had been injured in the auto accident.

MARK TIME ON DOCK STRIKE

NEW YORK (AP)—Federal mediators marked time today before making a second attempt tomorrow to settle a strike by AFL dock specialists which threatens to develop into a major East Coast shipping tieup.

The government conciliators made their first try at establishing waterfront peace last night, at the end of a day of work stoppages from Boston to Baltimore sparked by a handful of longshoremen seeking higher pay.

In New York City, with the world's greatest harbor, the walk-out already was assuming major proportions with the idling yesterday of 60 of 143 piers. Cargo handling was affected to a lesser extent at Boston, Baltimore, Philadelphia, Hoboken, N. J., and Yonkers, N. Y.

Little immediate change in the strike picture was expected today. The ports normally are quiet on week ends, and the men directly involved in the strike do not work on Saturdays or Sundays. No new mediation session are scheduled before tomorrow afternoon.

Poles Deny 2 Men Represent Exiles

LONDON (AP)—Officials of the Polish government in exile in London denied today any knowledge of two Poles, Jan Homa and Wanda Weber, who made statements in Warsaw that they had contacted exiled Poles while spying for western powers.

Polish newspapers published reports that Homa and Weber had returned to Poland after having become disgusted with work abroad which they said involved "criminal activities against Poland." They said they had been employed by the United States Secret Service and had been in contact with the Polish National Council popularly known as the government in exile, in Munich.

"We have read the names of these two persons in communist newspapers, but beyond that have no information about them," said Jerzy Hryniewski, who ranks as a minister in the council. "They have had nothing to do with our organization."

ASKS HI COURT TO REFUSE CIO T-H ACT HEARING

WASHINGTON (AP)—The CIO steelworkers' request for an immediate Supreme Court hearing on constitutionality of the Taft-Hartley act emergency strike section lacks merit and should be denied, says the Justice Department.

The case was appealed to the Supreme Court by the union after the U. S. District Court in Buffalo granted an 80-day injunction under the act to stop a strike at the Dunkirk, N. Y., plant of the American Locomotive Co.

The union, which thus lost its plea to have this provision declared unconstitutional, bypassed the U. S. Court of Appeals in going to the Supreme Court.

80-Day Injunction

President Truman ordered the Justice Department to get an 80-day, no-strike injunction last month. The strike of 1,500 employees at the plant, dating back to August, had halted production of nickel pipe needed in building atomic energy installations.

Solicitor Gen. Walter J. Cummings Jr., in a memorandum to the Supreme Court yesterday, said the steelworkers' constitutional argument "is so patently lacking in merit that no review by this court would appear to be warranted."

The union claimed in district court that the law's provision allows the courts to use their "coercive powers as part of an administrative procedure." It said the courts lack this power and the constitution.

The three principal atomic facilities affected by the strike are at Savannah River, S. C., Paducah, Ky., and Portsmouth, O. The Dunkirk plant is in full operation today.

The driver, John R. Bollinger, McSherrystown, suffered bruises of the head and legs. A companion, William Hockensmith, Hanover, was treated by Dr. Wilbur Miller, New Oxford, and then went to the Hanover Hospital, with a possible fractured skull, lacerations of the head and contusions of the body.

Damage to the automobile was estimated at $1,000. State police said the top and rear part of the car were crushed.

Consider Changes In Federal Tax Laws

WASHINGTON (AP)—A special House committee has proposed that the new Congress consider changing the tax laws to encourage private donations to colleges, foundations and charitable organizations.

The proposal was contained in a report to Congress on a six-month investigation of tax-free foundations to determine if their funds are being used for subversive activities or other purposes except those for which they were founded.

The report said Moscow set out 20 years ago to capture control of the multibillion-dollar foundations, but only "a very few actual Communists or Communist sympathizers obtained positions of influence" in these institutions.

The report, made public yesterday, said the foundations had a good record generally in resisting subversive influences and had proved they are a "vital and essential factor in our progress."

But it will be three years before she can feel sure of it, the surgeon added. He performed the Caesarian operation by which the baby was delivered. Her insistence on giving life to the baby, despite her dangerous ailment, aroused wide interest.

The doctor, who asked to remain anonymous, said Mrs. Garrett, now 27, underwent two operations a year or more ago for removal of chest and neck glands affected by Hodgkin's disease.

"Her condition's good, and the baby's fine," the surgeon said. "She herself believes she's completely over the disease."

LLOYD MANGRUM SETS PACE IN COAST TOURNEY

LOS ANGELES (P)—There's a familiar name at the top of the list today as the Los Angeles Open Golf Tournament heads into its second day.

It's that of Lloyd Mangrum, no stranger to the top money in the event. He won it in 1949 and again in 1951, and comes as close to understanding the Riviera Country Club's long, hilly reaches and well-trapped, curving greens as anyone in the field of 148 of the country's top golfers.

Mangrum wound up first day play all alone in the 69 bracket, two strokes under 35-36-71 par. Only four others broke a par before darkness settled down with two threesomes still on the course.

Al Mengert, a Spokane, Wash., lad who won the Mexican Amateur and was second in the U. S. Amateur, was in one of them. Going into the 16th hole he was two under par and in a position to tie or beat Mangrum. But with the night closing in, he went one over on 16 and 17, hitting a trap on the latter he didn't even know was there.

He'll finish out the 18th hole today.

Baltimore Lad High
Another new name near the top is Leo Biagetti, a Sandusky, O., towhead who got out of the Army last April and now is an instructor in Baltimore. Biagetti finished at 70, in a second-place tie with better-known Jack Burke Jr., Cary Middlecoff and Art Wall, the hole-in-one expert who claims he's made 30 of them.

Burke tied for first in this tournament last year, with Tommy Bolt and E. J. Dutch Harrison. Bolt won the playoff. He and Harrison finished the first round with 74s.

The 7,020-yard Riviera layout gave almost everyone trouble during the day. It is one of the longest major courses in the country, and recent rains didn't make it any easier. Drives weren't rolling and pitches were digging into the damp turf. But most of the field agreed that the greens were fast and true, and they made up there for troubles on the fairways.

Still, only 10 could do par or better.

At even figures were the leading money winner of 1952, taciturn Julius Boros of Mid Pine, N. C., Jay Hebert of Erie, Pa., Shelley Mayfield of Cedarhurst, N. Y., and a couple of top Southern California club players, the veteran Harry Bessler of Culver City and Ralph Evans of Riverside.

New Oxford

Miss Patty Jones, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Jones, Washington, D. C., spent the Christmas holidays with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Lyman Bishop, near Pine Run.

J. Arthur Donohue, Philadelphia, spent the Christmas holidays here with his family.

Mr. and Mrs. David P. Hykes, near New Oxford, were among holiday season guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Cleveland Barnhart, Hanover R. 1.

Mr. and Mrs. Bernard A. Wagner and five children, York, visited at the home of his mother, Mrs. A. P. Wagner, and family.

Harland C. Staub, Chevrolet dealer, has returned from Hershey and a showing of the 1953 Chevrolet. He was accompanied by Theron Niederer of his staff.

Mrs. C. Clark Brown spent the Christmas holidays with her daughter, Mrs. Hershel Shortlidge, and family, near Philadelphia.

The Men's Brotherhood of St. Paul's Reformed Church met at the church Friday evening and went to Hanover, where they attended a meeting as guests of the Men's Brotherhood of Grace Reformed Church.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert H. Smith, Hanover, visited his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Curtis J. Smith, during the holidays.

Many persons attended the New Year's Eve dance at the New Oxford Social and Athletic Club. Music was furnished by Dan Perna and his orchestra.

Mrs. Clarence A. Ruff entertained during the holidays her son, Russell, and wife, of Pittsburgh.

Raps Officiating In Sugar Bowl

JACKSON, Miss. (P)—Gov. Hugh White knocked the officiating of the Sugar Bowl football game New Year's Day which he said increased Georgia Tech's 24-7 margin of victory over the University of Mississippi.

The 71-year-old governor, who was a 235-pound center at Mississippi during 1898-1901, sent blistering telegrams yesterday to South-eastern Conference Commissioner Bernie Moore and George Gardner, head of the SEC officials.

White said he was not criticizing "a magnificent Georgia Tech team" but said Mississippi should have had three touchdowns instead of one.

"In my judgment," White said, "I witnessed the worst officiating that I have ever seen at the Sugar Bowl game."

COLLEGE STARS TURN PRO TODAY IN SENIOR BOWL

MOBILE, Ala. (P)—Chuck Maloy and Harry Agganis match passing wizardry with All-America Jack Scarbath and Ray Graves in today's fourth annual Senior Bowl all-star football game.

The game, in which collegiate stars from the North and the South turn professional, was rated a toss-up after the North squad's ace fullback, Chuck Hren of Northwestern, hurt his foot.

With four of the nation's top passers on the two teams, fans expected a brilliant show. Maloy of Holy Cross and Agganis of Boston College give the North its passing punch, with Bernie Flowers of Purdue and Ernie Stockert of UCLA on the receiving end.

The South relies on the tosses of Scarbath of Maryland and Graves of Texas A & M. Their top-flight ends are Lloyd Colter-yahn of Maryland, one of Scarbath's favorite targets, and lanky Jack Lewis of Wake Forest.

Now Both Even
Until Hren's injury made his usefulness questionable, the North squad, coached by Paul Brown of the Cleveland Browns, was a touchdown favorite to even the Senior Bowl series at two-all.

With Hren possibly sidelined, Brown called on halfback Gene Gedman of Indiana to fill the full-back gap. Other North ball-luggers include Michigan State's Don McAuliffe and Ohio State's Fred Bruney.

Leroy Labat — nicknamed "The Black Stallion of the Bayous" at Louisiana State—and Ed Modus-zewski of William and Mary have been tapped for most of the ground duty for the South squad, coached by Steve Owen of the New York Giants.

The weatherman predicted a fine day for a passing duel, and both coaches admitted that air attacks are their most potent weapons. A crowd of 20,000 was expected for the 1:30 p.m., CST, kickoff.

Each team is allowed only 23 players. Although both coaches planned to use the platoon system, some players necessarily have been tagged for double duty.

The North's defensive unit, composed of Big Ten, Pittsburgh and Penn State stalwarts, includes two All-Americans from Michigan State —linebacker Dick Tamburo and guard Frank Kush. Southeastern and Southern Conference players, plus Jack Little of Texas A&M and Ken Pridgen of Houston form the South's defensive platoon.

Each player on the winning squad is guaranteed $500. The losers get $400 each. This payment puts an end to their amateur status. Numerous scouts from professional teams are in Mobile for the game.

He borrowed $25 to bail himself out of jail and went back to the track yesterday. Micoka had won, paying $126.20. Cody pocketed $1,135.80.

Today's Talk

SPEEDING MAIL THROUGH PRAYER

Perhaps here is an idea for our next Postmaster General. A reader of these Talks has sent me a clipping from a plan put into force by their Postmaster, Lewis Moore. Some two years ago he suggested that his 450 carriers and employees take a minute out for a prayer for world peace, which was United Nations Day.

This was done and the reaction was so good that some of the workers suggested it be made a regular thing. The Postmaster agreed, provided that only a few minutes were used and that the prayer gathering be strictly on a voluntary basis. It was a huge success, and one employee who had a grudge against another was moved to go to that one, asking him to drop all enmity, which was done. So happy were all concerned that the prayer idea became a daily event, and the Postmaster announced that there never was better service rendered and that the attendance at the meetings was almost 100 per cent!

There was efficiency all along the line, and fine team work on the part of all. It's a most inspiring thought to have your letter or package delivered "on the wings of Prayer!" It brings to mind that statement that more is wrought through prayer than the world ever realizes. In that article that my reader sent to me it was stated that men prayed who had never prayed before, and that their work was more enjoyable than ever before.

Some time ago I came across a remarkable book about a man named R. G. LeTourneau, entitled "God Runs My Business." This man's business is in Peoria, Illinois, selling big machines to move earth, but a large part of his time is spent in giving religious talks all over the country. He is a believer in prayer and applies it to his daily life and to his business, and both have prospered in the face of many a difficult time, mastered through prayer. Prayer is a part of the routine of the LeTourneau organization. Prayer puts light into life.

Just Folks

FAILURE
I said to myself, I would frown a bit less
And smile a bit more,
But that's just as hard to do, I must confess,
As I've found it before.

Year after year, if the truth must be told,
I've resolved, all in vain,
To smile a bit more. Here's the year three days old
And I'm frowning again.

I promise myself every year that I won't
Be ill-tempered, but I have discovered I'll never improve if I don't Have the courage to try.

SEN. MCCARTHY TO HEAD GROUP HUNTING REDS

By JAMES MARLOW
WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. McCarthy—whose pursuit of Communists brought him jeers, cheers and reelection—is now in position to operate on a bigger scale than ever before, and seems to intend to.

In the new Republican-controlled Congress McCarthy will be chairman of a powerful Senate committee which has a staff of lawyers and investigators whom McCarthy can use in his Red hunt.

Until now—from the time he began his sensational charges of Communists in government almost three years ago—the Wisconsin Republican had to do business pretty much on his own and, more or less, with his own staff.

It is not known how President-elect Eisenhower feels about the prospect of stepped-up and even broader explorations by McCarthy. And there is no indication from what he has said recently that McCarthy intends asking.

Solo Is Fighter
If for any reason the new President sought to throw roadblocks in the senator's way, he might find, as have others who attempted to interfere with McCarthy, that he had a tiger by the tail.

In a copyrighted interview with reporters of the weekly magazine U. S. News and World Report, McCarthy outlined some of the avenues which he considers worth attention:

A continuing search for Communists in the government, particularly in the State Department; a hunt for Communists or "Communist thinking" in the colleges; and an investigation of corruption in government.

Eisenhower would certainly follow with interest a McCarthy examination of the minds of college professors since Eisenhower himself is giving up the presidency of Columbia University to be president of the United States.

And when Eisenhower is in the White House he can expect to see McCarthy's sleuths prowling around the government looking for corruption, not only corruption which might have occurred during the Truman regime but which bob up in Eisenhower's own administration.

As for the search for Communists in the government, McCarthy made it pretty clear he considers anything that's happened in the past only preliminary to a "real housecleaning."

WILL IMPROVE NATO DEFENSE

LONDON (AP)—Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden says Britain and her NATO partners will boost their defense spending in the coming year to counter the possibility of sudden Soviet aggression. Recent "modifications" in the British program, he declares, do not represent a cut in the nation's arms drive.

The statement—contained in a white paper to Parliament summarizing last month's North Atlantic Council meeting in Paris—occasioned some surprise. Prime Minister Churchill announced Dec. 4 that a cut in the nation's defense effort was necessary to avoid inflation.

The white paper, made public last night, declared that "recent modifications in our program reflect a change of emphasis in some fields 'but in no sense a reduction in the present scale of our rearmament effort. Indeed, next year we intend to spend more on defense than this year.'"

STREETS BARE OF BUSES AGAIN IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK (AP)—City streets were bare of buses for the third straight day today as union officials shunned all attempts to settle the strike against eight private lines.

With the long holiday delaying the full impact of the walkout by 8,200 drivers and maintenance men, the lull pointed up what will happen on Monday when 3½ million bus fares are affected. Car pools got under way yesterday and taxicabs did a thriving business.

Michael J. Quill, president of the CIO Transport Workers Union, said yesterday that Mayor Vincent R. Impellitteri's mediation committees "have nothing to offer," and added:

Arbitration Out
"Arbitration is out of the question right now. We have been instructed by the executive board and it is, 'Don't arbitrate.'"

In Albany yesterday, Gov. Thomas E. Dewey offered the aid of all state agencies to help settle the dispute, mainly involving the union demand for a 40-hour work week and a 25-cent hourly pay boost.

Wages of the striking workers range from $1.66 to $1.73 an hour. They have been working 44 to 48 hours a week while city transit employees enjoy a 40-hour week. The companies say they can't meet union demands without a fare increase. The city opposes any fare raise.

TIMBER FOR CASH CROPPING

What trees should farmers plant to produce annual cash crops from farm woodlots?

This question may somewhat astonish readers who do not realize that timber can be and is a marketable cash crop just as corn, wheat, other cereals and vegetables are grown for sale. Of course, there must be careful planning in timber growing, but once the woodlot is brought into vigorous production, a sizable flow of annual revenue may be expected for many years, in fact, as long as sound methods of replacement and management are practiced.

One of the first trees to attain salable size is the black locust. Here is a timber in wide demand for posts, mine props and other roles requiring a durable wood. The supply does not nearly meet demands. Those who doubt this statement may verify it by trying to purchase high grade locust posts from local timber supply dealers. After a black locust plantation is started, seedling volunteers and sprouts from cut trees furnish an ample number of young trees for expansion.

Black walnut trees remain the most valuable of native timbers. Supplies are so scarce that furniture manufacturers scour the country for individual specimens. In addition to growing into increased timber value each year, black walnut trees soon begin to produce annual crops of nuts which often prove more profitable than the potential timber value. Few trees so solidly enhance the farm's worth as black walnut. Idle fence rows and other unused nooks may be wisely utilized for growing this tree.

All that is claimed for black walnut is as truthfully advanced in the interest of shagbark or shellbark hickory trees. Here is an indispensable timber that combines with valuable nuts to fill a profitable niche in farm timber plans. Both black walnut and the hickories may be started by planting nuts in late fall.

The persimmon is often overlooked in terms of timber merit. Yet persimmon wood ranks near the top for making many articles requiring a close-grained wood. Trees are easy to start from fall planted seeds.

Dogwood timber fills almost the same roles in which persimmon wood serves. The supply is far inadequate to meet demands.

In all plans for farm-grown timber to produce annual revenue it is urgent to consider the vast opportunities for growing pulp wood. Our dependence on imported wood pulp seriously imperils our liberties. Americans may well look with alarm at the possibility that in times of war the federal government may quickly and easily control the press simply through its power to limit importations of wood pulp. The solution lies in profitable opportunities for growing all the pulpwood we now import. Timber for this purpose reaches marketable size early.

In all cases where timber growing is considered in a practical scope, the first step in woodlot improvement is to cease grazing timbered areas. Animals obtain little or no sustenance from this erroneous practice while they cause irreparable damage. Not only are young replacement trees destroyed by trampling, but the natural leaf mulch which timber trees require is gradually removed and eventually dead crowns appear in older trees to indicate the folly and danger of the process. Timber growing and grazing do not and never can be combined. One or the other must be abandoned. Fencing off the woodlot is a primary step toward starting timber growing as an annual source of farm revenue.

PRE-WINTER STRAWBERRY NOTES

Strawberry growers should watch the thermometer more than the calendar in late November to determine when to apply a protective winter mulch. The rule is simple but important. A temperature of 20 degrees F or a little lower is needed first to render the crown buds dormant. But at the same time, the mulch should be applied before a 15-degree temperature is reached, else the buds may be destroyed. And on this point it is necessary to remember that next spring's berries form from this fall's crown buds. In normal seasons mulching should be done in late November or early December.

Sodden, heavy mulches may cause more harm than no mulching at all. Light, airy straw or marsh hay is excellent. Growers should consider the ideal method of growing a small acreage of annual Sudan grass, seeded from late May to early July. Early cuttings of hay may be utilized for summer mulching, with the last cutting before frost arrives stacked for winter mulching.

When the time comes to remove the mulch in the spring, it may be raked into the aisles and some additional litter added later to form a summer mulch. With recurrent droughts likely to curb strawberry yields, summer mulching is more and more advisable. Besides conserving soil moisture, a summer mulch eliminates the work of cultivation, attracts feeder roots into the richer top soils, and protects berries from contamination with soil. As the older mulch decays it increases the soil's vital supply of organic matter.

The quite sudden advent of quick-freezing as a method of food storage finds American farms with strawberry acreage far below consumer demands. Few other fruits lend themselves so easily to freezing as do strawberries. Gardeners and farmers should now plan spring plantings to gain advantage of the market requirements existing now and those additional demands certain to develop in the next few years.

Among several facts worth consideration in planning strawberry-berries, either for expansion or a start, emphasis should be placed on natural soil fertility rather than on reliance on commercial fertilizers in the future. There is no substitute for a well drained, deeply mellow loam for this fruit, amply balanced with moisture-holding organic matter. Many problems related to this crop are thus solved by the excellent process of prevention.

Beginners are often enticed by beautiful pictures in nursery catalogues to select a variety not fully adapted to their particular region or to their soil and climate. One of the most accurate guides in safe varietal selection is to plant a variety that is already bearing satisfactorily in the immediate vicinity. Untried varieties should, of course, be tested but always on a small scale at first.

For the benefit of beginners it may be added that nursery plants should be ordered in early January for March 1 delivery, with planting scheduled as early in March as soil and weather conditions permit. If fall weather is favorable, a heavy application of livestock manure should be turned under and the loose soil blanketed with vegetation — leaves, straw or other litter, to prevent over-winter losses by splashing erosion.

In the meantime every person with unanswered questions about strawberry growing should write the editor for needed advice.

FACTS ABOUT SMOKING MEATS

Smoking does not cure meat. It is intended and serves mainly to color, flavor and dry cuts that are already prepared for the smoking process by either the dry or brine cure methods. The preserving action of smoking is so slight that emphasis should be kept on its major function — flavoring.

Every person who plans to slaughter hogs for home consumption should first be armed amply with accurate knowledge about how to cure meat to insure the absorption of sufficient salt to prevent the entrance of spoilage organisms later. Of course, if meat absorbs excessive salt, that is, more than is needed to prevent spoilage,

History staggered forward, sideways and backward on all fronts in 1952.

Hubert B. Wolfeschlegelsteinhausenbergorff wrote to a Philadelphia paper, complaining it had spelled his name Wolfeschlegelsteinhausenbergorff.

The Russians claimed to have invented baseball and, in Hempstead, N. Y., a man became so annoyed with the noise he shot and killed his television set.

An auto salesman in Warren, Ark., announced he was a candidate for alderman and then hastily withdrew after learning his opponent was his boss.

Arms Away

Rome police arrested a three-armed pickpocket. He wore an artificial third arm in a sling to divert attention from his working arms.

In Phoenix, Ariz., a 12-year-old candidate for secretary of the school student group released a full financial statement. He swore he had no campaign funds. His only income: a $1 weekly allowance plus bonuses for every gopher caught in the backyard.

An ex-GI in Milwaukee, veteran of five years in the army, sued for divorce, complaining he was "shocked" by his wife's language.

The main course at the annual dinner of the Barbour County (Ala.) Cattle Growers Association was fried chicken.

Answering an alarm in Long Buckby, England, firemen caused an uproar below when they poured water down the wrong chimney.

Red Line on Humor

In Moscow, Izvestia said the Soviet theater needed more comedy. The government paper said comedy is "particularly well suited to our energetic, cheerful life and full, healthy humor."

In the confusion of a seasonal rush in Decatur, Ill., one substitute mailman collected letters delivered a few hours earlier by another substitute mailman.

Replying to his wife's charges that he mistreated her, a man in Hackensack, N. J., insisted, "I never laid a hand on her since I broke her arm in 1950."

Thinking he was climbing into a taxi, a Richmond, Ind., drunk gave the driver a dollar and his address. It turned out to be a police prowl car, which took him to jail.

Mistaken Identity

In Norfolk, Va., a woman was attacked by a strange man, who cut her left arm, bit one finger, paused for a long look and apologized, "I beg your pardon—I thought you were my wife."

San Antonio police were called to stop an argument between two women. One woman, 82, accused the other, 91, of drinking and carrying on with strange men.

Tipped by phone that his store was being robbed, a Brooklyn hardware dealer rushed down to investigate, was greeted by two men who forced him to open the safe and turn over $624.

In Providence, R. I., a driver was fined $10 for speeding after he explained he was trying to catch an hour lost in Daylight Saving Time.

Help Wanted

Ad in a Mexico, N. Y., paper: "George, please come home, the children need you, the lawn will need mowing soon and the garden needs a worm like you. Your loving wife."

A poultry dealer in Raleigh, N. C., closed up his market after 25 years in the business. He had just discovered he was allergic to chickens.

King Ibn Saud of Saudi Arabia had his 64th child. He is 75.

The flavor will be impaired in direct proportion to the excess. In other words, strict rules for curing light cuts for bacon and the heavier hams and shoulders should be followed in regards to the amounts of salt used and length of time cuts remain in the cure. These facts apply to both the dry and brine curing methods. When the cure is complete, meat should be taken from the dry cure table and made ready for smoking. First, all salt adhering from the dry cure should be brushed from the surfaces. Then the cuts should be soaked in cold fresh water — light bacon cuts for 30 minutes, hams and shoulders for two hours.

Next the cuts should be scrubbed with a stiff brush in hot water, after which they should be wiped dry and made ready to hang in the smokehouse. Hams and shoulders should be fitted with wire or stout cords through the hocks and bacon cuts should have stiff wire or wooden skewers run through them laterally to prevent their curling and warping during the smoking process.

Before cuts are hung in the smokehouse the room should be preheated to 100 to 120 degrees. Then after the meat is in place this temperature level should be maintained until the fat surfaces begin to shine. This is a drying-off benefit that greatly improves the smoke effects later. Ventilators should be opened at once to carry away the excess moisture.

The fire should be directly beneath the cuts but not close enough to cause scorching or overheating. A thin haze of smoke is just as effective as a dense cloud. Of course, green hardwood produces the maximum of smoke with a minimum of danger from excessive flaming.

The best smoking wood, according to most home butchers, is unseasoned hickory. Many favor oak, apple or other hardwood. A few prefer corncobs. In no case should pine or other resinous or aromatic wood be used.

Usually well dried meats are sufficiently smoked in two or three days. The degree of smoking is, of course, a matter of personal preference.

As soon as smoking is completed and the cuts are cooled off, they should be wrapped in grease-resistant paper to prevent grease coming through to soften the outer muslin bags in which each cut should be encased for storing. This bagging process, if done with care, will bar most weevils and other common insects that attack and infest stored meats. Well cured smoked or unsmoked cuts should be hung in a dark, dry, well ventilated room where there is no danger of rats and mice reaching them.

Otto Graham's Baby Dies In Cleveland

CLEVELAND (AP) — Stephen Graham, six weeks old son of the Cleveland Browns' quarterback, Otto Graham, died Friday a few hours before his parents arrive by plane from the West Coast.

The child had been ill for several days with a bad cold. A physician said the immediate cause of death was asphyxiation, caused by a congestion of fluids.

Graham, and his wife, Beverly, were notified Thursday by a housekeeper that the baby was ill, and took a plane from Los Angeles. Graham was scheduled to play for the American Conference All-Stars against the National Conference in the National League's Pro Football Bowl Jan. 10.

The Grahams' other children are Duane, 5, Sandra, 4, and David, 2.

Vet Is Suffocated In Bungalow Fire

HUGHESVILLE, Pa. (AP) — A New Year's Day fire destroyed a six-room wooden bungalow and caused the death of Harry Boyer, 44-year-old World War II veteran.

Boyer's father, Charles, 75, suffered face and arm burns but escaped from the flaming house where father and son lived the last seven years.

Dale Swisher, fire department chief in this Lycoming County community, said the fire started in the front of the building from an undetermined cause.

The younger Boyer's body was found beside the front door. Death was due to suffocation.

SOLONS SEEK TO CUT PRICE, WAGE CONTROL

WASHINGTON (AP)—Price, wage and materials controls should be abandoned and prices are unlikely to rise if this is done, the House Small Business Committee told the new Congress.

The committee's recommendations were contained in its two-year report Thursday winding up its business on control policies in one of the pressing problems facing the Eisenhower administration and the new Republican-controlled Congress.

The committee of six Democrats and five Republicans, one of them Rep. Charles Halleck of Indiana, incoming Republican floor leader, was unanimous in saying controls could be dropped without price rises. It said decontrol would help provide a smooth transition "back to free competition."

The committee asserted there had been "inertness" and "deterioration in the caliber of personnel" in the present emergency control agencies. Falling prices, the committee continued, showed that decontrol could be accomplished if tax, spending and credit policies were used to fight inflation. It recommended some provision to permit presidential imposition of a limited price freeze in any future emergency.

The committee set no decontrol dates except to say steel allocations should be terminated by the end of March and aluminum and copper decontrolled as soon as possible. Wage, price and rent controls expire under present law April 30, priority and allocation rules for scarce materials June 30.

Ask New Buying Unit
The committee said the percentage of defense contracts awarded to small firms had dropped steadily since the Korean War started and the Department of Defense had not been effective in reversing the trend. It suggested a central civilian agency to do the department's purchasing.

The Federal Trade Commission was criticized for "weakness" in protecting small business from anti-competition practices and suggested Congress review the situation.

The committee proposed that private means be used for financing small business, with direct government loans only as a last resort, and that taxes on business income should be reduced. If excess profit taxes are continued at all, the group said, they should be amended to allow small firms to retain earnings "vital needed for normal business operations."

ASK BANK REPORT

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Comptroller of the Currency Friday issued a call for a statement of the condition of all national banks at the close of business Wednesday, Dec. 31.

Riding with Russell

REG. U.S. PAT. OFF.
by FREDERICK C. RUSSELL
member S.C.E.

An automobile repairer is one of the few business men who can be on top while he's down under.

Danger In Stickage

Something to beware in slippery weather is a fairly simple thing that has occasionally trapped the unwary driver. I refer to the throttle and its control mechanism from the accelerator pedal. If this sticks in the open position the engine will race and the car may be thrown into a skid or driven ahead sharply against the driver's will.

Where a car has a clutch pedal the first reaction is to press the pedal down and release the motor so that it cannot exert this unwanted power to the rear wheels. In one case where the car was equipped with an automatic transmission the driver lost just enough time remembering there was no clutch pedal to release that the car went into a bad skid. In view of the variations in car controls these days it is smart to remember that the driver with the automatic transmission might have saved himself the skid if he had just quickly turned the ignition key to the off position.

So They're More Simple

Anyone who doesn't think that the modern automobile is more complicated than the earlier cars should just make one simple check. Take any one of the old service manuals and compare it with the new. Instructions for care and operation of the Haynes Model 60, published in 1942, runs 66 pages. It includes everything from care of the differential to such details as how to clean the crankcase. By contrast, the 1952 technical service manual for one of the popular makes measures one solid inch thick. The automatic transmission section alone runs pages. But that isn't all. There's a separate body manual running almost as voluminous.

For Future Reference

It isn't unusual with some cars to have what is known as an acceleration rattle after replacing the clutch disc. However, this should disappear after the car is driven ten miles or so.

One owner who had failed to restore any semblance of shine to the finish of his car tried rubbing it with polishing compound on the theory that he couldn't possibly make matters worse. To his surprise a very good and highly glossy finish finally showed through. The surface had apparently been badly clouded with inappropriate and possibly incorrectly applied polishes and sealers.

When a hot engine refuses to re-start, even if the driver opens the throttle wide while cranking, the indications are that the engine overheats or that the gasoline is too volatile.

Mechanic Joe Speaking:

"How long brake lining will last depends on how fast the car travels, the density of traffic, and the skill of the operator. People who fail to read the road properly are obliged to make many extra stops, and usually at too high speed. Hilly terrain does not necessarily wear the brakes excessively because drivers are schooled in such areas to use the lower gears. Brakes get their worse punishment in high speed boulevard traffic where panic stops are quite common. The better the tire treads the less strain there is on brake lining because tires that grip improve braking."

What's In A Word

After many years of studying complaints about cars I have come to be quick to note any little clue that may be the short route to a diagnosis. Sometimes the tip-off is a single word. Typical is the letter now on my desk from an owner who is plagued with air in the braking system. He has gone to a lot of trouble trying to be rid of this, but I find the answer in the statement that he has bled off the lines "many" times without success. The clue lies in that word "many."

If he had been using new fluid each time he drained the system—as would be necessary for a proper job—the process would be rather expensive. Old fluid may contain air and should not be re-used.

Blowing Up Molehills

As one who has consistently used hydraulic valve lifters for 15 years I fail to become alarmed over the flood of complaints from present users. It seems to me that many owners are making a mountain out of a simple molehill, and that the remedy for lifter noises and stickage is something which any car owner with a little experience ought to be able to take in his stride. If there is little attention paid to the selection of oil, and no consideration for the need to keep the oil clean and free of organic deposits (gums, varnish) the troubles that follow should not be a surprise. Even valves will stick under such conditions. And it is a fact that in many cases the lifters are blamed when the trouble is squarely with the valves.

Car dealers now use special lubricants and additives to keep the valves and their lifters working normally. There is some difference of opinion here, and much additional research is needed, but results are being had and there's no need for any owner to be complaining about a feature of engine design which, when working properly, gives him perfection in tapet adjustment.

The Natural Order

Often motorists write me to say that they are troubled by the dual annoyance of tire wear noise as if these were two separate conditions. I think it would help them to realize that, barring certain kinds of tire treads such as snow or mud treads, you do not get tire noise until there is tire wear. The noise follows the wear.

If water has been leaking into the cylinders past a faulty cylinder head gasket or a crack in the head you'll know it by the way the engine cranks. Instead of a steady cranking you'll get a start and then an abrupt stop. This may go on in an erratic fashion until the engine either gives up the ghost or starts with considerable steam from the exhaust system. Resistance to cranking is due to the fact that when the piston of a water-logged cylinder comes up on its compression stroke it meets the water and won't go any further until the water is forced past the rings.

Risk In Mixing Them

Car makers always warn us but somehow the tendency is to forget the importance of marking bearing caps when removing them. Unless they are put back in their original positions trouble follows. Switching the caps on two main bearings that looked to be in exactly the same condition resulted in cracking one of them when the nuts were drawn up to the required 90 foot pounds torque.

What's Your Trouble?

Q. I have just had the front end re-aligned but the wheels continue to shimmy. This occurs at comparatively low speeds. That is, under 30 miles per hour. Shock absorbers have been checked. L. G.

A. Have you checked the front tires for pressure? One of them may have a slow leak. Underinflation is a frequent cause of this type of shimmy.

Q. What would cause brakes to chatter badly? Lining is new and of good quality. We have tried chamfering the ends of the linings so that there is smoother engagement with the drums. Wm. H. N.

NEW RETREADS CHECK SKIDDING

A new type of retreading to provide skid-control is now being employed at the Reel Tire Service, Donald Reel, owner of the Buford Ave. business, said today.

Known as "Penetred" the recap-

the motor runs. Mr. Russell will answer questions regarding the safe care and operation of your car. Just address him at 254 Fern St., West Hartford, 7, Conn., and enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope for a personal reply. There is no charge.

Q. For several weeks I have been troubled with the engine stalling. This isn't that condition you mentioned wherein the stalling comes from icing of the throttle because in my case I often get a stall with a warm motor. Idling speed has been increased a little but without any improvement. J. J. H.

A. I would check the carburetor float level next. It may be too high. Q. What would cause the car to wander so much on the open road? I have had the entire steering system checked over and we can't find anything loose. J. McB. N.

A. Maybe the steering assembly is so tight that it binds at some point. This is a common cause of weaving and wandering. Q. I get terrific gear grinding when starting in low but never hear anything like this in the other gears, nor in reverse. A friend of mine thinks this must be an indication of a bad bearing in the transmission. L. D. Jr.

A. Your friend is sending you on a detour. You'll find that the low gear is worn. Until you decide to have this repaired run no more than necessary in low. You'll find you can shift out of low into second at a speed lower than you usually do.

Q. Is there a way to test for sticky valves? I suspect this is what causes lack of performance and a drop in gas mileage. G. S. R.

A. This can be tested with a vacuum gauge. A sticky valve will be indicated by the pointer dropping about 4 points occasionally as ping places specially processed steel claws, about 5,000 per tire, even with the face of the re-capped tire. When brakes or power are applied, the rubber of the tire flattens out slightly pushing the tiny steel claws through any slippery road film into the road surface. Thus skids are prevented and cars can start on ice or other slippery surfaces.

"Penetred" consists of placing approximately six steel coils around the tire, inside the tread, and located just at its surface. After about 500 miles of driving the top of the coil wears off leaving the thousands of tiny steel claws in the tread.

Experiments with the metal coils in the re-capped tires, Reel said, have proved that the metal causes the tire to run cooler, by removing the heat from the center of the tire, and prevents punctures, because the steel claws act as an "armor" fending off glass, nails and other materials that would cut the tires.

LIE ACCUSES STATE DEPT. OF DELAY TACTICS

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP)—Secretary-General Trygve Lie publicly charged last night that the U. S. State Department delayed in providing, and in some cases denied him, information he could use to oust disloyal Americans from the U. N.

Lie's blast against U. S. officials was contained in a statement sent to the State Department and Senate investigators Dec. 23 but not released in full to the press until last night.

It was made public about the same time as Atty. Gen. James P. McGranery announced in Washington that he had ordered a new federal grand jury investigation into charges that disloyal Americans had infiltrated the U. N. The charges were raised by another grand jury before its term expired last month.

The State Department declined comment on Lie's charges. However, officials told the Senate internal security subcommittee at a hearing Dec. 31 that the department would have "taken steps to try to work out a new procedure" for supplying Lie with personnel information if he had complained earlier about methods being used.

URGE COUNTIANS

(Continued from Page 1) send the exhibits in to the State Farm Show. A number of countians have exhibited year after year and have won many prizes. But Adams County has never exhibited in the Farm Show as it should. We make and grow many excellent things here, and we should let the state know about it.

Have Premium Lists Miss Mickey particularly urged countians to take part in home economics division of the farm show. On the 4-H Club level, she said, youngsters who took part in "fun to cook," "charm in the home," clothing and tea clubs during the past year made many articles which would be acceptable exhibits at the state show.

While countians were urged to mail exhibits now, or take them to Harrisburg Saturday, Miss Mickey said she would take to Harrisburg for the show any exhibits left in her office at the court house on Friday noon, January 9, when she will leave for Harrisburg. She is a member of the foods committee for the show.

Copies of the premium lists for the show, listing the thousands of articles for which prizes will be awarded, are available at the county extension service office at the court house here.

RESOLUTIONS ARE USUALLY BROKEN IN DAY

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP)—How many people have asked you today—usually with a smirk:

"Well, what have you given up for the New Year?"

Behind the looming query lies the assumption on the part of the questioner that you are a fellow hypocrite.

He assumes that you, as well as he, made a pompous list of good resolutions—and that you both have already broken them. He recognizes in you a kindred soul, another broken reed.

The uncomfortable truth is—he probably is right. The high resolves made on New Year's morning often are forgotten by nightfall. Rarely do they endure a week.

The reason for this is simple. People make the wrong kind of New Year's resolutions. Let us peer into an average American home and see how the man of the house, Mr. Joseph Doakes, tries to reform his way of living.

He is seated at a desk. He takes out a sheet of paper and writes on it:

"I Heretby Resolve"

"I hereby resolve to give up smoking."

Joe looks at that, smiles in smug virtue, and adds another line:

"I hereby resolve to quit being inconsiderate of my wife."

Just then Mrs. Doakes peeks over his shoulder and says, "What are you doing, dear?"

Startled, Joe snaps, "None of your business. Can't a man have any privacy in this house?" His conscience already bothers him as he puts down a third line:

"I hereby resolve to quit being so sharp with junior."

At that moment junior tears into the room chasing the cat. The cat leaps up on the desk and overturns the ink bottle.

"Now look what you've done, you little imp!" Joe yelps at his son.

"Can't you ever be quiet?"

Junior breaks out crying. Mrs. Doakes says, "That's a fine way to talk to your own child," and Joe, his nerves jangling, hauls out a cigarette and lights it.

"What's the Use?"

He looks down and re-reads his three pledges—all made and broken in less than 10 minutes.

"What's the use?" he growls, crumples the paper into a ball, and throws it into the wastebasket.

What Joe doesn't realize is that he has made the mistake most Americans do in formulating good resolutions. They resolve to quit doing something; they believe it is bad instead of resolving to do something that is better.

Their approach is negative instead of positive. It is passive rather than active. They try to weed out their small vices instead of planting more virtues. The only way to cure a bad habit is to replace it with a new habit. Otherwise a vacuum is left in your life—and the old bad habit will certainly move back in to fill it.

It isn't what you don't do that makes you better. It's what you do do.

SEN. M'CARTHY BLASTS BACK AT SENATE GROUP

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis.), blasting back at the Senate election subcommittee's challenge of his honesty, dared its members to try to bar him from being sworn in today for his second Senate term.

In a bitterly phrased report, the subcommittee last night questioned whether McCarthy had profited personally by "gambling" in the commodities market with "funds advanced for his anti-Communist drive."

Making no recommendations of its own, the group left to the Senate of the new Congress convening at noon today the problem whether to take any further action.

Sen. Hayden (D-Ariz.), the second Democratic member of the subcommittee, and Hennings said they had no such plan. There was no immediate comment from the group's lone Republican member, Sen. Hendrickson (R-N.J.), who is ill at his home here.

Sen. McCarthy, in a statement, said the Senate subcommittee had hit "a new low in dishonesty and smear" with its comments about him. In a later statement phoned to reporters he challenged its members to ask the Senate to bar him, declaring, "If they do not they will have proved their complete dishonesty."

No More Ten-Ton Awards On Tomatoes

HARRISBURG (AP)—Pennsylvania tomato growers have done so good over the years that the State Farm Show Commission has decided to abolish an award honoring growers for attaining a yield of 10 tons an acre.

The commission disclosed Friday that it has replaced the "10 Ton Tomato Club" with a master tomato grower award. An unspecified number of farmers will receive the new honor on Tomato Day, Tuesday, Jan. 13., at the 37th annual State Farm Show.

"Tomato growers reached the point where a yield of 10 tons an acre was so common" that the former award was done away with, the commission explained.

IKE MAY DROP NEWS PARLEYS

NEW YORK (AP)—Frequent, regularly-held presidential news conferences—an American institution under the Truman and Roosevelt administrations—may become a thing of the past when Dwight D. Eisenhower moves into the White House. There are indications that Eisenhower as President may not hold such conferences as regularly as President Truman and as the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt did before him.

With some exceptions, Truman has met with newsmen once a week at no-questions-barred conferences. So did Roosevelt, whose general practice was to hold news conferences twice a week.

James C. Hagerty, Eisenhower's press secretary, has declined to say in advance of inauguration day—Jan. 20.—what the new President's policy will be with respect to news conferences although Hagerty hints that the policy to be followed already has been determined.

Hagerty refused to comment on a report published in the Baltimore Sun that Eisenhower may abandon the traditional question and answer sessions in favor of periodical reports to the Nation by television and radio.

NEW BATTLE ON TRUCK WEIGHTS AT HARRISBURG

By JOHN KOENIG JR.
HARRISBURG (AP)—A new battle over truck weight limits in Pennsylvania already is shaping up in the 1953 General Assembly, opening next Tuesday.

Trucking interests are getting ready to submit a measure similar to that vetoed in 1951 by Gov. John S. Fine. The State Highway Department has come out officially against any sizable increase in the weight of trucks using the State Highway System.

Expected to be a factor in determining the course the Legislature takes on the matter is a report due from the Joint State Government Commission.

Has Substitute Plan
That research arm of the General Assembly undertook a study of truck weights and their relation to highways when the 1951 bill fell short of enactment.

Approved by both houses just before the close of the historic year-long session, the old measure would have increased weight limits on commonly-used trucks from 45,000 to 60,000 pounds.

E. L. Schmidt, state highways secretary, has said he will oppose a boost of that size. Instead, he said, his department now is working on an alternate plan to hike limits but on a smaller scale.

Lays Axle Weight Important
"The state highways system just won't stand any major increases in vehicle weights," Schmidt commented.

The Pennsylvania Motor Truck Association, representing trucking interests throughout the state, maintains that it is not weight of trucks that is the prime factor in road maintenance.

"Gross weight is not a factor in destroying a road—it is the axle load that matters," said Edward Cogolin, PMTA general manager.

He said the aim of the 1951 proposed legislation was to promote the use in Pennsylvania of "more efficient" trucking units rather than boosting weights.

Claim Disadvantage

The measure would have increased the limit of double tandem axle semi-trailers from 45,000 to 60,000 pounds and of single tandem axle semi-trailers from 45,000 to 48,000 pounds.

The double tandem axle type was not in use when present weight limitations were enacted into law, Cogolin said. In maintaining that axle load is the prime factor in road destruction, he pointed out that present limits on the axle load—20,000 pounds per axle—would not be increased under the proposed legislation.

"We will await the Joint State Government Commission's report," said Cogolin. "If it is not delivered within a reasonable time, we shall proceed with a new proposal patterned on the 1951 bill."

Cogolin claimed that Pennsylvania is at an "industrial disadvantage" with weight limits here smaller than in surrounding states—all of which have limits above 60,000 pounds.

Steve Wochy of the Cleveland Barons in the American Hockey League scored 10 winning goals during the 1951-52 season.
